

Infectious Disease Training Position in Viral Pathogenesis

Opportunities for fellowship training in viral pathogenic disease in humans are available in the Viral-Immunobiology Laboratory at The Scripps Research Institute.

Unique opportunity to study:

- Tropical viral zoonoses
- Global health
- Virally induced immunopathology
- T cell epitope discovery
- T cell function during viral pathogenesis
- Antigen presenting cell function
- Genetic basis for disease progression
- Virus genetic diversity

T H E
S C R I P P S
R E S E A R C H
I N S T I T U T E[®]

Applicants with a background in immunology, virology and/or infectious disease preferred, but all well-qualified applicants are encouraged to send a cover letter, curriculum vitae and contact information for three references to:

Michael B.A. Oldstone, M.D. (mbaobo@scripps.edu) and

Brian M. Sullivan, Ph.D. (bsully@scripps.edu)

An equal opportunity employer